

WORKSHOPS THAT WORK

MASTERING GROUP DYNAMICS

LEAD ENGAGING DISCUSSIONS, BUILD TRUST, AND FOSTER COLLABORATION

Each of us can be a leader, even if we don't have "manager" or "supervisor" in our title. Each day we have opportunities to be a positive influence and foster trust and respect in our workplace. This workshop will help you learn practical communication tools within group settings, the preparatory actions to set meetings up for success, conflict resolution skills, and tips to improve your office environment - all of which will all lead to more engaging discussions and energetic collaboration within your team.

Lead the Way

Examine the communication skills and traits every good leader must work on to be an effective influence.

Map Out Your Meetings

Learn how to assess, schedule, and prepare for meetings that will lead to successful collaboration.

Build Trust & Unity

Evaluate your existing workplace culture and learn simple steps to make it thrive.

ABOUT YOUR INSTRUCTOR:

Tiffany Olson earned a B.S. and M.S. in Communication at Illinois State University. She has nearly 30 years of teaching experience, both in the college classroom and in the corporate environment. She enjoys helping her clients hone their skills through workshops and one-on-one coaching.

PRAISE FROM PAST ATTENDEES:

"I appreciated that instead of just talking around the issues, Tiffany gave us actionable steps to improve our leadership skills. She helped me identify where I want to take my team, and gave me the tools to get us there."